THE COUNSELING SOURCE, INC. POLICY AND PROCEDURE

TITLE: Pharmacotherapy - Medication Review

PURPOSE: To ensure appropriate review of the use of medication for persons served.

POLICY: The Medical Director will ensure regular review of clients receiving medication to monitor the efficacy, side effects, and any contraindications of prescribed medications.

PROCEDURE:

1. Each client is regularly reviewed by a physician. This frequency is usually every four weeks. In the event of additional need, the client is seen more frequently. It is the intent to see the client in the presence of the client's guardian, within the school in which he attends. When this is not possible, the client and guardian come to a school closest to the home school for services to be rendered. In the event that the guardian is unavailable at any school and the need for medication is emergent, medication management could occur at the physician's office. The client's guardian has the absolute right to accept or refuse medication recommended. The following areas are considered at each review:
 - A. Needs and preferences of each person are reviewed;
 - B. The efficacy of the medication is described;
 - C. The presence of side effects and the percentage known are described as well;
 - D. If there are contraindications, that medication is not offered;
 - E. A mental status evaluation is conducted to determine the organic effects of medication including any form of side effect secondary to the use of antipsychotic medication.
2. In the interest of state-of-the-art use of medication, the newest medications with the least side-effect profile are initially used. That would include the atypical antipsychotic medications; the SSRIs, (serotonin reuptake inhibitor medications); the stimulants and non-stimulants for such conditions as attention deficit disorder; and any other medication provided to the client and guardian. The response of each is documented along with documentation of whether or not the information is understood and whether or not the medication is agreed upon or refused by the client and/or guardian.
3. Every effort will be made to achieve the least restrictive medication regimen determined to effectively manage the client's symptoms.

THE COUNSELING SOURCE, INC. POLICY AND PROCEDURE

TITLE: Eligibility for Services: Restricting Rights or Access to Services

PURPOSE: To outline circumstances during which an individual's rights or access to services may be restricted.

POLICY: The Counseling Source, Inc. will maintain written guidelines describing circumstances or scenarios in which an individual's rights or access to services may be temporarily or permanently restricted. Such guidelines will also clearly identify conditions that must be satisfactorily met for reinstatement of services.

PROCEDURE: The following factors may result in temporary or permanent restriction of services:

- A pattern of repeated missed appointments, including client refusal, client failure to show, and/or client cancellation
- Threats directed toward TCS Staff, other clients, and/or facility staff
- Violent actions directed toward TCS Staff, other clients, and/or facility staff
- Involvement in conflicting or duplicative mental health services
- Extensive non-payment for services rendered

Reinstatement of services is dependent on the following:

- In the case of repeated missed appointments for any of the reasons outlined above, an attendance plan will be developed in collaboration with the treating therapist. If agreed upon conditions are met, and it is determined that the client remains genuinely invested in ongoing services, treatment will continue in accordance with the treatment plan.
- In the case of threatening behavior exhibited by the client, the client will be reassessed once his or her behavior has been deescalated. If the treating therapist determines that the client remains an appropriate candidate for services, services will be reinstated contingent upon approval by The Executive Director.
- While violent actions directed toward others are likely to result in a permanent restriction of services, the client may request special permission from The Executive Director to resume services on a probationary basis.
- In the event of conflicting or duplicative mental health services, the client will be advised of the ethical considerations inherent in this arrangement. The various options will be discussed with the client's best interests in mind. If a client chooses to remain engaged with both providers, the necessary Release of Information must be obtained in order to ensure continuity of care and to minimize potential risks associated with this arrangement.
- In the case there is no payment for services for two consecutive months, the responsible party will be notified of the nonpayment. This notice will advise responsible party that the client has two sessions remaining prior to termination of services for nonpayment. The termination will be discussed and closure brought to the therapeutic relationship. Assuming the outstanding charges have not been made in full within 14 days of notification services will be terminated. Services may be reinstated upon receipt of full payment of the outstanding balance and the continued availability of the clinician's time.

THE COUNSELING SOURCE, INC. POLICY AND PROCEDURE

TITLE: Client Suicidality/ Threat of Harm to Self

PURPOSE: To establish and maintain best clinical practices in the event of suspected suicide risk or threat of harm to self.

PROCEDURE: The clinician should refer to the following policy if a clinician suspects a risk of suicide or if a client reports a threat of harm to self. The policy is broken down into two different sections, as procedures for residential and school-based clients will differ slightly from procedures for non-residential/non school-based clients.

For nursing facility/residential settings/school-based clients:

1. Upon discovery of threat, the clinician will assess risk level of client either by means of a skilled clinical interview or through the use of the Brief Risk Assessment.
2. If a threat is reported and clinician is concerned for client safety/welfare, the clinician should complete the Client Safety Plan and should not leave the client unattended until client is deemed to be safe.
3. Upon discovery of threat and assessment of risk level, the clinician should notify the appropriate staff person immediately to ensure continued supervision of client.
 - (a) In nursing facility/residential settings, the appropriate staff person to notify is the facility Social Worker, DON, or Administrator. If key staff people are unavailable, the clinician should go through the chain of command at the facility to notify staff who can then contact the Social Worker, DON, or Administrator.
 - (b) In schools, the appropriate staff person is the Principal, Guidance Counselor, or teacher who should have some familiarity with the client. The parent/guardian should also be notified, if clinically appropriate.
4. Based on the determined risk level, the clinician will discuss clinical recommendations with facility/school staff and parent/guardian (if applicable), such as psychiatric hospitalization, supervision/monitoring, or any other recommendation that is deemed appropriate by the clinician.
5. The clinician should thoroughly document contact with client, report of threat made by client, actions taken upon discovery of threat, and name/title of facility/school staff who was notified of the report prior to leaving the facility. This should be filed with other TCS documentation or left with point person. It is recommended that the clinician use the handwritten Progress Note, which should be located in the field kit. A copy of the note should be retained for your records.
6. The clinician should thoroughly document contact with client, report of threat made by client, actions taken upon discovery of threat, and name/title of facility/school staff who was notified of the report in Doc Tracker as soon as possible.
7. When deemed clinically appropriate, the clinician should attempt follow-up with facility/school staff and client or parent/guardian (if applicable) to ensure client safety and for ongoing assessment. All follow-up efforts should be documented in Doc Tracker.

For non-nursing facility/non-residential or non school-based clients:

1. Upon discovery of threat, each clinician will assess risk level through the clinical interview process or through the use of the Brief Risk Assessment.
2. If a threat is reported and clinician is concerned for client safety/welfare, the clinician should complete the Client Safety Plan and should not leave the client unattended until client is deemed to be safe.
3. The clinician should consider the following course of action:
 - (a) If appropriate, recommend hospitalization and encourage client to go to the emergency room, if appropriate.
 - (b) Contact a family member, friend, or trusted member of client's support system to discuss report of threat and recommendations. If appropriate, the clinician should ask this person for assistance in transporting client to the emergency room.
 - (c) If risk is imminent and the client is refusing to go to the hospital and does not agree to not harm himself/herself, the clinician will call the police or 911 for assistance in transporting the client to the hospital and will not leave the client unattended until under appropriate police or medical supervision.

4. The clinician should thoroughly document contact with client in Doc Tracker as soon as possible, noting report of threat made by client, actions taken upon discovery of threat, and name/title of facility/school staff who was notified of the report.
5. When deemed clinically appropriate, the clinician should attempt follow-up with the client to ensure client safety and for ongoing assessment. All follow-up efforts should be documented in Doc Tracker.

TITLE: Visiting Former Clients

PURPOSE: To promote ethical decision making and behavior following the termination of a formal counseling relationship.

POLICY: The Counseling Source does not permit clinicians to visit former clients following the termination of a formal counseling relationship.

PROCEDURE:

1. In accordance with ethical standards of professional licensing boards, The Counseling Source maintains that a clinician shall not enter into a personal relationship with any client for whom they have provided professional mental health services of any kind. Personal visits with former clients are, therefore, prohibited.
2. Similarly, when a client is transferred to another clinician within the agency, no further contact should be made with the client by the initial treating clinician. 3. While it is acknowledged that subsequent contact with a former client may be unavoidable, at times, given the nature of the settings served by The Counseling Source, such contact should be limited to brief, courteous acknowledgements or greetings. 2. If there has been a change in client's payer source since the prior episode of care and the change results in a new or additional fee for service, updated written consent must be obtained from the responsible party.
3. If the client's guardianship status has changed since the prior episode of care, updated written consent must be obtained from the responsible party.
4. In the event the client's payer source and guardianship status remain unchanged since his/her prior episode of care, well documented verbal consent from the responsible party is sufficient to reactivate services.
5. When reactivating services for any client, the clinician must confirm that any prior diagnoses, as well as the Individual Service Plan (ISP), remain accurate and appropriate based upon the client's current clinical presentation.
6. If a change in diagnosis or ISP goal is indicated, the clinician must complete an Updated Assessment justifying the change(s) warranted by the client's current clinical presentation.
7. In the event services are resumed for a client who was discharged prior to July 1, 2018, the clinician should approach this scenario in the same manner he/she would approach a new referral.
8. Similarly, in the event services have been inactivated since July 1, 2018, but for whom more than three years have passed since the inactivation date, the clinician should approach this scenario in the same manner he/she would approach a new referral.

PURPOSE: To provide guidance and instruction surrounding inactivation of clinical services.

POLICY: It is the policy of TCS that inactivation of services will occur under the circumstances outlined below.

PROCEDURE:

1. A clinician should begin working toward inactivation of services under the following circumstances for which sufficient documentation justifying the inactivation of services is required:
 - a. The client has successfully met his/her treatment goals.
 - b. The client has expressed a personal preference to discontinue services.
 - c. A change in client's cognitive status has rendered him/her no longer appropriate for services.

2. In the event a client has not been seen in over 120 days, automatic inactivation of services will occur and the Clinician will be required to complete an Inactivation Summary. An administrative or supervisory override may be provided, thereby allowing the case to remain active, providing the following conditions are met:
 - a. There is sufficient documentation present to demonstrate a reasonable explanation for the lapse in services.
 - b. There is a reasonable expectation that services will resume in the near future.

3. Services for high risk clients who have dropped out of treatment may be inactivated at any point in time at the clinician and/or supervisor's discretion, providing reasonable efforts have been made to re-engage the client and such efforts are clearly documented in the client record.

4. Services can be seamlessly reactivated for any client who is re-referred within three years of the date of inactivation, in accordance with the agency's Reactivation Policy.

PURPOSE: To provide guidance and instruction surrounding expectations for continuity of care during the summer months for clinicians working with school aged children.

POLICY: During the summer months, the frequency of all clinical services for all school aged children served by The Counseling Source shall continue to be dictated by the client's clinical presentation coupled with the needs and preferences of the client and/or his/her parent/legal guardian.

PROCEDURE:

The clinician shall notify the parent/legal guardian of any school aged child served by The Counseling Source of all available modalities by which clinical services can be continued during the summer months. 3. If the client's clinical presentation or preferences for treatment have changed, thereby warranting an associated change in session frequency, this information should be clearly and promptly documented in the client record. Please note: Session frequency should NOT be reduced solely as a function of external factors, including the associated inconveniences and potential barriers imposed on provision of services during the summer months.
4. Consultation with parents/legal guardians should continue in a manner consistent with the agency's service model and be clearly documented in the client record (by means of a brief consultation note or CPST note, as appropriate).
5. THE COUNSELING SOURCE, INC. POLICY AND PROCEDURE

TITLE: Telehealth service requirements

PURPOSE: To provide guidance and instruction for the use of both synchronous and asynchronous telehealth modalities in clinical service provision.

DEFINITIONS:

Synchronous modalities: include any form of live communication that requires all parties involved in a conversation to be present at the same time (i.e. video conferencing, Face Time, telephone call, etc).

Asynchronous modalities: include any form of communication where both parties can interact with one another at times that are appropriate and/or convenient for them (i.e. email, text, and fax).

Originating site (Client site): refers to the site where the client is located at the time telehealth services are rendered.

Distant site (Provider site): refers to the site where the clinician is located at the time telehealth services are rendered.

“Near continuous” communication: as defined by TCS, refers to a series of email or text exchanges for which there is a gap in conversation of no more than 5 minutes at any point in time, given a reasonable allowance for the time required to write and transmit the communication.

POLICY: It is the policy of The Counseling Source that telehealth services be offered to any client for whom face-to-face services are not possible or not desired and that such telehealth services be provided in accordance with all state regulations and federal law.

PROCEDURE:

1. The clinician should first determine the appropriateness of telehealth based on one of the following qualifying conditions set forth by TCS:
 - a. The client was admitted to TCS as a telehealth client. Of note, initial in-person visit requirements have been eliminated as a pre-requisite of telehealth service delivery
 - b. The facility or school has restricted the access of TCS clinicians.
 - c. The client/clinician has been ordered to quarantine and face-to-face meetings are not medically advisable on a short-term basis.
 - d. The client has requested telehealth services based on his/her personal preference.
 - e. Special permission has been obtained by the Executive Director as a result of a clinician’s underlying medical condition, compromised immunity, or other extenuating circumstances.
2. The clinician must be reasonably proficient in the use of equipment necessary to provide telehealth services.
 - f. The clinician should request additional instruction/training in the use of required equipment, if necessary.
3. While written consent should always be obtained if at all possible (either in-person, by mail or through the use of Docu-sign or similar service) well documented verbal consent is sufficient in very limited instances to initiate telehealth services.

4. Prior to each telehealth encounter, the client's identity should be verified by the clinician through means including, but not limited to, the following methods: direct observation via teleconferencing, clear recognition of the client's voice via telephone, or a password assigned by the clinician for this purpose.
5. All clinicians providing telehealth services by means of videoconferencing should adhere to the same standards for professional attire and grooming as is required for in-person services. Doxy.me is the designated, required platform for any telehealth videoconferencing services provided by TCS.
6. All individuals receiving telehealth services must be verbally informed of the potential risks associated with receiving services via telehealth and it should be clearly documented in the client record that the client readily agreed to assume such risks. At minimum, the description of potential risks should address:
 - a. The clinical aspects of receiving telehealth services.
 - b. The security considerations associated with receiving telehealth services.
 - c. Confidentiality considerations when receiving telehealth services.
7. To the extent possible, all HIPAA and 42 CFR Part 2 confidentiality requirements remain in effect.
 - a. It is the responsibility of the clinician to ensure the distant site is private and free of distractions at the time services are rendered.
 - b. It is the responsibility of the clinician to verify that the client is comfortable with and agreeable to the degree of privacy offered at the originating site at the time services are rendered.
8. All telehealth services provided must be deemed medically necessary and meet the necessary eligibility requirements to qualify as a legitimate, billable service of its kind.
9. Each clinician providing telehealth services must have a contingency plan in place for providing services when technical problems arise during service delivery.
10. Each clinician shall be aware of the client's specific location (street address and city) during the provision of telehealth services and be prepared with local resource information in the event of a mental health emergency. Such information should include, at minimum:
 - a. A local (if available) or national suicide prevention hotline
 - b. Contact information for the local police and fire departments.
 - c. Child Protective Services contact information for each county served.
 - d. Adult Protective Services contact information for each county served.
11. Each telehealth service should be documented in the client record in accordance with documentation standards applicable to the specific service being rendered (i.e. mental health evaluation, counseling/treatment, CPST).
 - a. Mental health evaluation services may be rendered via telehealth by means of synchronous or asynchronous modalities, providing a reasonable interval of exchange is present to ensure near continuous communication during the use of asynchronous modalities.

b. Counseling/treatment services may be rendered via telehealth by means of synchronous or asynchronous modalities, providing a reasonable interval of exchange is present to ensure near continuous communication during the use of asynchronous modalities.

c. CPST services may be rendered via telehealth by means of synchronous or asynchronous modalities. Of note, while CPST activities may be provided via “near continuous” communication during the use of asynchronous modalities, a range of activities may also be billed as CPST that do NOT necessarily require “near continuous” communication when the use of asynchronous activities are employed. For example, a clinician can write or receive an email for which there is no ongoing, near-continuous interaction and the clinician can still bill for the writing or analysis of the email, providing a CPST eligible activity is performed.

d. Simple record review of information received through non-electronic means does not constitute a billable service.

e. All telehealth services must be deemed medically necessary.

f. The associated clinical documentation should include a clear notation that the service was provided via telehealth.

THE COUNSELING SOURCE, INC. POLICY AND PROCEDURE

TITLE: Addressing significant delays in clinical documentation

PURPOSE: To reinforce the importance of timely clinical documentation and to provide clear notification of the consequences of significantly lagging clinical documentation.

POLICY: Timely clinical documentation is an integral component of the services we provide. It is extremely important not only from a client care perspective, but also from a risk management perspective. It is the policy of TCS to reduce compensation for services rendered when the associated clinical documentation has not been submitted within an acceptable time frame, as defined below. A Professional Development Plan (PDP) may also be implemented in support of the clinician's efforts to address such deficiencies when an ongoing problem. The PDP will outline clear expectations (including measurable goals and designated timelines) for remaining in good standing with the agency moving forward.

PROCEDURE:

1. Human Resources (HR) will notify the Executive Director and members of the Professional Development Support Team (PDST) when a delay in a clinician's clinical documentation exceeds two pay periods.
2. The Executive Director and/or select members of the PDST will contact the clinician to discuss their plan for bringing clinical documentation current and to explain to them that they will be subject to a formal Professional Development Plan (PDP) if they do not do so by the agreed upon deadline.
3. The identified clinician will be notified by HR that they will receive compensation at the current minimum wage rate for work turned in beyond the third payroll for which clinical documentation has not been submitted. For example, if there were payrolls called in on 10-1, 10-15, and 10-29, and a clinician turns in paperwork for the week due 10/1 on 10/30, then in the next payroll the clinician will be paid minimum wage for those hours turned in from the week that was due on 10-1.
4. Should the problem not be resolved promptly a PDP may be developed in collaboration with the clinician's supervisor (if applicable) and members of the PDST to support the clinician in becoming and remaining current with all clinical documentation moving forward.
5. The clinician must fulfill all terms outlined in the PDP in accordance with the specified timeframes to guarantee continued employment with the agency in his/her current capacity.
6. The clinician must remain current with all clinical documentation following the successful completion of the terms outlined in his or her PDP. Failure to sustain timely documentation following such remediation efforts may be cause for the clinician's dismissal.
